OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Proposal writing is a process organizations follow for proposal creation. Proposal writing can be used in various settings, including business, academia, and government. In each case, the goal is to present a clear and concise plan to convince the reader to approve the proposal. Keep the following in mind when preparing your objectives:

- State your objectives in quantifiable terms.
- State your objectives in terms of outcomes, not process.
- Objectives should specify the result of an activity.
- Objectives should identify the target audience or community being served.
- Objectives need to be realistic and capable of being accomplished within the grant period.

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

On the other hand, outcomes record the changes that occur as a result of your program. Outcomes are the difference you've made as a result of the outputs: the decrease in hunger, the decrease in disease, the increase in a person's ability to care for themselves, etc. These two words sound like synonyms, but it's important for grant writers to understand their differences. Confusing these two words will weaken your grant proposals; understanding them will strengthen your proposal

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Your vision communicates what your organization believes are the ideal conditions for your community – how things would look if the issue important to you were perfectly addressed. This utopian dream is generally described by one or more phrases or vision statements, which are brief proclamations that convey the community's dreams for the future. Developing mission statements are the next step in the action planning process. An organization's mission statement describes what the group is going to do, and why it's going to do that. Mission statements are similar to vision statements, but they're more concrete, and they are definitely more "action-oriented" than vision statements.

TOPICS COVERED

- Behavioral objectives
- Community-level outcome objectives.
- Process objectives.

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

A vision states what the organization aspires to become in the future. A mission reflects the organization's past and present by stating why the organization exists and what role it plays in society. Goals are the more specific aims that organizations pursue to reach their visions and missions.

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

Internal funding include using cash on hand, investments and the sale of assets, explains the BBC's education portal, Bitesize. Cash on hand is money in your bank account, often kept in an operating account. If you are earning interest on your extra cash through investments, you might sell those if you think this money is better spent on a project, paying down high-interest debt or other needs. If you have assets – such as old inventory that isn't selling – you can sell it, even at a loss, to raise internal capital. Some people consider your personal capital as internal funding.

PROGRAMME REPORT

Name of the programme :	A One Day Workshop On Intellectual Property Rights – Issues & Problems
Date of the programme:	11.10.2022
Resource person details :	Dr.Karunakar Kavuri, Assoc_Prof Swamandhra Institute of Engineering and Technology, Narasapuram. Ph no:9290121240 karunakarkavuri@gmail.com
Program co-ordinator:	Mrs.P.Sheela, Asst Prof CSE DEPARTMENT, WISE ENGINEERING
Organized by :	DEPARTMENT OF COMPUTER SCIENCE & ENGINEERING
venue :	West Godavari Institute of Science and Engineering

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Intellectual property rights are policies that assign and protect the rights to earn income from innovative and creative activity. These rights provide legal authority to control the dissemination and commercialization of new information and ideas and to enforce sanctions against their unauthorized use. Intellectual property rights play a critical role in global economic growth and development because they affect the profitability of industrial research and the rewards to creative activity. At the same time, intellectual property rights are controversial because their stronger international protection may come at the expense of higher prices and reduced availability of products, particularly in developing countries. Obviously, developing countries prefer a low level of protection.

Topics covered:

- What is IPR's? Types of IPR's
- Issues relating to Intellectual Property Rights
- Advantages and Disadvantages of Intellectual Property Rights

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

A common man comes across intellectual properties from dawn to dusk. He uses the products which are intellectual properties of some one. The socio-economic development of a country depends to a large extent on the creativity of her people and creative works can't be encouraged without effective administration of copyright laws. Librarians as the custodians of most of the intellectual property cannot be left out in the successful implementation of copyright laws. Violation of copyright laws can easily be carried out in the library. In order to have books, author and creators of literary and artistic works, there should be adequate reward commensurate with the work. Hence, the enactment of copyright law to encourage creativity. Librarians need to be carried along in the war against violation of copyright laws. Therefore, the knowledge about intellectual property right is must for a common man.

ABOUT PROGRAM

Objective:

A Data Management Plan, or DMP (sometimes also called a data sharing plan), is a formal document that outlines what you will do with your data during and after a research project. It describes the type of data you use for your research, how are collected, organized, and stored, and what formats you use. When sensitive data are used, the DMP must also describe what steps you are taking to make your data secure and compliant with regulations. It details how data will be accessible and documented for sharing and reuse during and after the project is finished. DMP are required by an increasing number of funding entities and research institutions. "

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

A business can range from a single proprietor enterprise to a large corporation which employs thousands of workers across multiple countries. Based on the scale of business, organizations are classified as micro-enterprises, small-scale enterprises, large scale industries, public enterprises, and multinational corporations. The term 'large-scale' is generic in nature and includes different types of industries. In India, the following heavy industries fall under the purview of large scale industries:

- Iron and Steel Industry
- Textile Industry
- Automobile Manufacturing Industry
- Over the last two decades, Information and Technology (IT) industry has evolved and has contributed huge revenues while creating thousands of jobs for Indians. Hence, many economists include it in the large-scale industry sector.
- Telecom Industry

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

In recent years, as the markets opened up due to globalization, there has been a mixed effect on large-scale industries. There are some who have managed to attract international customers, foreign trade and technology, tie-ups. However, there are also others who were unable to cope with the competitiveness ushered in by the open market.
