OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Modern manufacturing is at the core of industrial production from base materials to semi-finished goods and final products. Over the last decade, a variety of innovative methods have been developed that allow for manufacturing processes that are more versatile, less energy-consuming, and more environmentally friendly.

Modern manufacturing emerged with the Industrial Revolution in the eighteenth to nineteenth century in the United Kingdom. The invention of the steam engine allowed development of mechanized systems in many fields such as mining, transportation, and textiles.

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

Modern manufacturing emerged with the Industrial Revolution in the eighteenth to nineteenth century in the United Kingdom. The invention of the steam engine allowed development of mechanized systems in many fields such as mining, transportation, and textiles. The social and economic impact of this transition created a new social order in terms of the longevity, income, and purchasing ability of the population.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Questionnaires, interviews, rating and attitude scales, and tests, are the major data-gathering research tools. In the following sections and sub- sections we shall discuss these research tools. 'Questionnaire' is a commonly used and frequently abused tool for gathering a variety of data. Describe the characteristics of a good research tool, Define a questionnaire and describe its various types; Describe the characteristics, uses and limitations of a questionnaire; Define a rating scale and describe its types, uses and limitations; Define an attitude scale and describe its types, uses and limitations

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

A tool should yield objective information and results. In other words, the results should be independent of the personal judgment of the researcher. If it cannot yield objective data, we say that it is not usable. If the tool can be administered in a short period of time, it is likely to gain cooperation of the subjects and save time of all those involved in its administration. The cost of construction, printing and administration of the tool should be reasonable. The simplicity and ease of administration, the swres and interpretation are also important factors to be considered while selecting a tool, particularly, when the expert advice is not easily available. The tool should interest' and fascinate the subjects so that it may gain their cooperation.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Intellectual Property Rights (IPRs) are the rights associated with intangible property owned by a person/company and protected against use without consent. Thus, rights relating to ownership of intellectual property are called Intellectual Property Rights. These rights aim to protect intellectual property (creations of human intellect) by allowing the creators of trademarks, patents, or copyrighted works to benefit from their creations. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) also refers to intellectual property rights under Article 27 which states that “Everyone has the right to the protection of the moral and material interests resulting from any scientific, literary or artistic production of which he is the author.”

Topics covered:

- Meaning, Nature and Rights of Intellectual Property
- Need for legal protection of intellectual property rights
- Advantages and Disadvantages of Intellectual Property Rights

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

The importance of Intellectual property rights in a world of technological, scientific, and medical innovation cannot be ignored at any cost. IP is a valuable asset since it provides a competitive advantage to the owner over other entities. To make the most out of IPR, it is advisable to get it registered. An intellectual property right is a proprietary right on the product of one's intellect. These rights support innovation and help the innovators at every stage of the business development, competition, and expansion strategy. It is also noteworthy that registered and enforced IP rights enable the consumers to make an informed choice about the quality, safety, reliability of their purchase.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Research methodology is a way of explaining how a researcher intends to carry out their research. It's a logical, systematic plan to resolve a research problem. A methodology details a researcher's approach to the research to ensure reliable, valid results that address their aims and objectives. It encompasses what data they're going to collect and where from, as well as how it's being collected and analyzed.

Tools and techniques in research are the statistical methods of collection, analysis, interpretation, presentation, and organization of data. Statistics provides numerous tools and techniques to analyze the data and interpret the results of the analysis.

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

A research methodology gives research legitimacy and provides scientifically sound findings. It also provides a detailed plan that helps to keep researchers on track, making the process smooth, effective and manageable. A researcher's methodology allows the reader to understand the approach and methods used to reach conclusions.

A detailed account of the research experience from selection and experience of the problem, formulation of hypotheses, gathering, analyzing and interpreting data, testing of hypotheses, making conclusion and suggesting further research in the related problem area is called a research report.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

A startup is a new and emerging business, typically in the early stages of operation. Startups are characterized by rapid growth and scalability, and they often rely on funding from investors, grants, or other sources to get off the ground and grow. Startups often try to disrupt established markets or create new ones, and as a result, they can be high-risk ventures. An entrepreneur starts and runs a business. They are responsible for making key decisions, taking risks, and driving the success or failure of the business. Entrepreneurs are often driven by a desire to create something new and innovative, and they often have a clear business vision and goals.

Topics covered:

- Women entrepreneurship
- Principles of entrepreneurship

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

Nurturing entrepreneurship can have a positive impact on an economy and society in several ways. For starters, entrepreneurs create new businesses. They invent goods and services, resulting in employment, and often create a ripple effect, resulting in more and more development. For example, after a few information technology companies began in India in the 1990s, businesses in associated industries, like call center operations and hardware providers, began to develop too, offering support services and products. Entrepreneurs add to the gross national income. Existing businesses may remain confined to their markets and eventually hit an income ceiling. But new products or technologies create new markets and new wealth. Additionally, increased employment and higher earnings contribute to a nation's tax base, enabling greater government spending on public projects.

OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAM

Intellectual Property Rights (IPRs) are the rights associated with intangible property owned by a person/company and protected against use without consent. Thus, rights relating to ownership of intellectual property are called Intellectual Property Rights. These rights aim to protect intellectual property (creations of human intellect) by allowing the creators of trademarks, patents, or copyrighted works to benefit from their creations. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) also refers to intellectual property rights under Article 27 which states that “Everyone has the right to the protection of the moral and material interests resulting from any scientific, literary or artistic production of which he is the author.”

Topics covered:

- Meaning, Nature and Rights of Intellectual Property
- Need for legal protection of intellectual property rights
- Advantages and Disadvantages of Intellectual Property Rights
- Components of Intellectual Property Rights
- Steps to register copyrights in India
- Procedure for getting a Patent in India

OUTCOME OF THE PROGRAM:

The importance of Intellectual property rights in a world of technological, scientific, and medical innovation cannot be ignored at any cost. IP is a valuable asset since it provides a competitive advantage to the owner over other entities. To make the most out of IPR, it is advisable to get it registered. An intellectual property right is a proprietary right on the product of one's intellect. These rights support innovation and help the innovators at every stage of the business development, competition, and expansion strategy. It is also noteworthy that registered and enforced IP rights enable the consumers to make an informed choice about the quality, safety, reliability of their purchase.
